Describe your family ielts sample answer

Describe a family that you like and are happy to know – IELTS Cue Card Sample 54 $18 $37 Written by professional IELTS teachers to help candidates on the big day 4.5 rating BAND 9.0 SAMPLE ANSWER: I want to talk about a family that I'm very close to. It's my uncle's family. His family has 2 daughters who are about the same age as me. That's why I usually come by his house to talk to them. At times we bake some cakes and take them to the grandparents' house. Then we have an overnight sleep there. Besides, we often hang out, especially on weekends just to take it easy and enjoy ourselves to get ready for another week. Your parents, I mean my uncle and aunt, are very warm-hearted, and they both work as college teachers. So when I encounter difficulties with my homework, I usually turn to them for help. I remember when I was a kid, I lived in my uncle's house, and they looked after me like I'd been their daughter. Therefore, our relationships are outside this world, even if we do not have much time together as before. But on special occasions like the Tet holiday, we will gather at my grandparents' house to make Chung cake, enjoy a fireworks show and wish New Year's greetings to each other. As a final point, I hope that we can maintain this close relationship forever. VOCABULARY ■ close: [adjective] knows someone very well and likes them a lot. This is a two-storey building with more than 8 rooms. I live on the ground floor, and this room is relatively than other rooms. It is a south facing room with beautiful garden and lake views. Since I'm still a student, the room gives the impression that a student lives there. • How long have you lived there? I have lived in this house since childhood and I got my own room when I was around 9 years old. I still live in this room. • What do you like about living there? The room is quite comfortable and has a beautiful view. I can easily reach the ceiling from my room, and I like to spend time there. The room has two large windows and provides enough sunlight and air. I have lived in this room for many years and I love this room a lot. • What do you dislike about living there? Well, I'm pretty happy with my room, except it's not big enough. This is the only aspect I dislike about this room. Not that it's so much small, but I have a personal preference for staying in a large room. • What kind of accommodation do you most want to stay in? I like to live in a big house than to live in a small house or in an apartment. The house must have a large garden in front of it and should be far away from the main road. Having a fountain in the garden would be a bonus for me. I also prefer to stay in such a house that offers enough sunlight and air. My room must be large and well decorated based on my personal preferences. The room must have large windows and the correct ventilation system. • Describe the room you live in? Well, there is a medium-sized square room located in the northern part of the house. It's on the ground floor, and this is the room I've lived for a long time. It has two windows, a private bathroom, and it is painted with light green color. I have my bed, sofa set, some paintings, wardrobe, study table, an armchair, a computer, a TV set, a music player, an AC and a space heater in this room. The view from the room is quite beautiful, and that is the main reason why I love to quiet in this room. Family: • Do you have a large family or small family? I have a small family and there are only five members, including my father, mother, younger sister, younger brother and I am (the oldest son in the family). • Tell me something about your family. As I said, we have five family members in our family, including me. My father is a doctor and a hero. My mother is a school teacher and a loving and caring person. We love our parents very much. My younger sister is in grade 7, and she has all the crazy and creative ideas, and she shares most of her secrets with me. My younger brother is studying mathematics at a university and he has a passion for playing football. He dreams of becoming a professional footballer one day, although I have doubts about it. I recently completed my bachelor's degree in computer science and have a plan to complete my master's degree from a reputable foreign university. We are a happy family and share a strong bond that makes us care a lot about each other. • How much can you spend with family members? I usually try to spend most of my time with my family. But I can't do time when I'm out at my university. But after I return from university, I don't do anything late to share the day-long events with family members, especially with my mother. • In what way is your family important to you? My family is the center of the universe. My parents did everything humanly possible to raise me and secure education and well-being. Your sacrifices and contributions to my life are second to none. I will always be grateful to be a member of such a happy and caring family. My family members know me better than any other person, and they will always be with me no matter what. They are the ones who had always been with me and supported me in every possible way. I think my family comes first, and that's why my family is the most important aspect of my life. • What kind of things do you like to do together? Often we see movies in theaters and also go for some day trips during the holidays. In fact, my father likes to go out with family members when he is free from his professional engagements. But mom prefers to go to the movies, and thus we, the children, are going to solve the problems. • Do you have/are you healthy with your family? Why? Yes, I'm going to be very good with my family members. They are supportive, positive, intelligent and caring. I wouldn't say we never had any disagreement, but it's usually short-lived. Love is stronger among us, and it overcomes any misunderstanding that may come among us. In fact, I am happy to be part of such an amazing family. They love me just as much as I love them. • Who are you close to in your family? I'm close to every family member in my own way. But when it comes to sharing personal secrets and spending time, I am closer to my mother than my father. My younger sister considers me her best friend, and thus we have a unique relationship. • Should we rely heavily on our families, or is it better to try to be independent? I believe that being independent does not contradict our trust in our family. Each individual should be financially and personally independent at a certain age and should be close to his/her family at the same time. If being independent means living individually and not having a strong relationship with my family, I don't want such independence and freedom. We all have unique personality and a desire to be independent, but it should not harm our family relationship. • Do you get along well with your family? Yes, I get along well with my family members. We have a strong bond among us, and that makes us a happy family. • What is your special moment with your family? Celebrations are remarkable, especially the celebration of some special occasions such as a birthday, the anniversary of my parents or any special achievement of my siblings etc. These events have so many special memories, and we consider these as our special moments. • Are people in your country generally close to their families? Most people prefer to be with their families and do everything for their members. But exceptions are everywhere. Those who live opposite our apartment do not have a strong bond among family members and always engaged in arguing with each other that is unwanted and obscene. Friends: • Are your friends mostly your age or other age? Why? Most of my friends are my age and I have some friends who are senior to me. The reason I have friends my age is that they were mostly my classmates in the first place and then became my good friends. Most of my friends are from my high school and college, and of course they do at my age. • Do you prefer one or two close friends or many friends? When I was in my early teens, I preferred a lot of friends, but today I have few friends, but they are very close to me. So I would say that I prefer to have few close friends than to have too many regular friends. • Do you usually see your friends on weekdays or weekends? Why? I usually see my friends on weekdays or weekends. Weekdays are busy days, and after I get home at night, I prefer to stay at home with my family members. • Do you prefer to be alone or with your friends? I usually prefer to be with my friends. But there are times when I need my personal time, and in this case I prefer loneliness instead of companies. • Last time you saw your friends, what did you do together? We played badminton together and had dinner at a nearby restaurant. It's the last thing I can remember doing with my friends, and it would about a week ago. • In what ways are your friends important to you? I share many common interests with my friends, and that makes us have nice activities and conversations together. They are quite useful and supportive of me in times of desperate time. I can share almost anything with them, and that makes them special to me. Having good friends is like being blessed, which is why they are very important to me. • What do you prefer: go out with your friends or spend your free time at home? It depends. Sometimes I prefer to be with my friends, and sometimes I prefer to stay at home with my family members. I try to maintain a balance when it comes to spending time with my friends and with my family. For example, while playing some outdoor sports, I prefer to go out with friends. But I like watching movies and eating out with my family members. • Do you have many friends? Why? why not? As I've already said, I had a lot of friends when I was in high school. But these days I have relatively fewer close friends. • What do you usually do with your friends? I like to play outdoor games, watch movies in a theater, have conversations related to recent political and international issues, share my updates and concerns, go drive with my friends. The best part is the open conversation we can have to almost all topics. • Are friends as important to you as your family? For me, my family is more important. However, this does not make my friends any less important to me. Naturally, the family comes first for almost everyone and then the friendship. I'm no exception. • Do you think friendships change as we get older? How? Yes, I think so. At an early age, we are inclined to make many friends, and only a few of them remain for a long time. At this stage in life, the friendship is not so deep, except in some cases. On the contrary, as we get older we prefer to have few friends, but most of them remain as loyal and close friends. At a young age, our expectations from friends are to enjoy their camaraderie and do all the wrong things with them. But at an older age, we expect far more from our friends, and they become more like family members than being just friends. • What do you expect from a good friend? Well, that's a hard question! Not that I haven't thought about it, but I've never drawn a solid conclusion about it! My expectation from a good friend is that he would be a good companion, good listener, would criticize me when needed, would be supportive and positive. He has to be honest and have a sense of humor. In the end, I expect him to be more like a family member than an outsider. Outsider.
